OFFICE OF REPORTS AND ESTIMATES

MONTHLY REPORT

MARCH 1948

MEMORANDUM FOR THE DIRECTOR OF CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE

Subject: ORE Status Report: March 1948

I. The CIA Intelligence Plan.

A copy of the intelligence production program for the next quarter is attached as Annex "A."

II. Intelligence Production.

1. Current Intelligence.

In addition to the Daily and Weekly Summaries, one report of the CIA Series and five Special Evaluations were published. A list of the topics covered in the Weekly Summary is appended as Annex "B." A review of the list indicates that the Western Europe and Far East/Pacific Branches carried the heaviest burden in the production of Current Intelligence for the Weekly Summary. These two branches have led in this category consistently in recent months.

A review of the items in the Daily Summary indicates that the Western Europe and Eastern Europe/USSR Branches carried the heaviest burden in the production of Current Intelligence for that publication.

2. Basic Intelligence.

Replies received from the majority of the IAC agencies to date indicate general approval of the total MIC program. Full implementation, however, will require realignment of effort for basic intelligence production and augmentation of the IAC agencies' productive capabilities. The IAC agencies are currently examining their capabilities for the production of Basic Intelligence to determine what measures will be necessary to fulfill the recommended program.

3. Staff Intelligence.

During March four Special Estimates of the ORE Series and one Situation Report were published. A list of the scheduled reports and estimates published or in process during March is attached as Annex "C" showing the status of each paper. A list of those unscheduled reports prepared during the month is attached as Annex "D."

4. Intelligence Presentations.

During March six presentations, twenty-three interrogations, and nine briefings were conducted. The presentations and interrogations were attended by eighty-one representatives from the Department of State, thirty-five from the Navy, twenty-seven from the Army, and eight from the Air Force. This is a substantial increase in activity over February. A list of oral and graphic presentations, interrogations, and briefings is attached as Annex "E."

5. Scientific Intelligence.

The survey of Soviet chemical literature begun during February is in the final stages of preparation. A summary of the work completed by the Scientific Branch on the Russian Air Study was transmitted to the Research and Development Board. It has been decided that any study or group of studies of this kind should result in a regular ORE report rather than a joint CIA-RDB effort.

6. Map Intelligence.

During March the Map Branch completed seventy-four new maps and six map intelligence reports. This represents a substantial increase over February. A resume of Map Branch activities is attached as Annex "F."

III. Intelligence Requirements.

1. During the month requirements for intelligence and intelligence information were submitted in the regular manner. A resume of requests submitted to OCD is attached as Annex "G." An examination of these requests shows that slightly less than 25% of the 514 specific requests were for collection of new information in the field. The remainder were for the collection of intelligence materials, usually documents, available in Washington.

Approved Release 2002/06/18 : CIA-RDP79-01 A0000100020007-3

IV. Adequacy of Intelligence Information and Intelligence.

1. Reporting from the Field.

a. Cable Traffic.

During March the Department of State continued to supply nearly 90% of the cables upon which most Current Intelligence is based. The Army contributed approximately 10% of the cables received, and the Navy and Office of Special Operations also contributed small quantities. The cables from the IAC agencies continued to be received less than 24 hours after arrival in Washington, while SO reports based on cables continued to lag behind.

b. Field Reports.

During March the Department of State supplied the largest volume of written reports from all areas and the Army was the second largest supplier.

c. Total Volume of Intelligence Information.

During March the total volume of intelligence documents and cables received by the regional branches was as follows:

Western Europe	7,622
Eastern Europe/USSR.	5,636
Latin America	4,376
Northern
Near East/Africa	3,742
Far East/Pacific	3,021

The quantity of intelligence material received was somewhat higher than during February although the Western Europe, Eastern Europe/USSR, and Latin American Branches continued to receive a larger amount than the other branches. This suggests that these branches carry a substantially greater burden than the others in processing the intelligence material received.

d. Appraisal.

There continues to be little relation between the volume of intelligence material received, the adequacy of the information received, and the importance of the area. The adequacy of the information and the extent of coverage continues to be somewhat below the desired quality in all areas, although the Northern and Western Europe areas appear to be covered the best.

2. Intelligence Coverage by CIA.

During March an interdepartmental re-appraisal of Soviet intentions was begun under CIA chairmanship as a result of a request from the Director of the Intelligence Division of the Army. In conjunction with this re-appraisal, two papers have already been published, and a number of interdepartmental subcommittees are engaged in a detailed study of the advantages and disadvantages that would accrue to the USSR as a result of military occupation of Western Europe and part of the Near East by the USSR. It is believed that such a coordinated study constitutes a more efficient use of the experts of the IAC agencies who are concerned with various aspects of the problem.

3. Intelligence Coverage by Other IAC Agencies.

From the material available to ORE, there appears to have been no important change during March in the adequacy of the intelligence coverage by the other IAC agencies. In general, the quality and quantity of coverage continue to depend more upon the flow of information than upon the importance of the subjects treated.

V. Efforts to Facilitate Intelligence Research and Production.

1. Coordination and Liaison.

Liaison between the various regional desks in ORE and the Contact Branch of the Office of Operations has been particularly effective during March. This close liaison has made it possible in many cases for the regional desks to submit intelligence information requirements to OCD in the light of an adequate knowledge of the capabilities of the source from which the desired information was to be obtained. This results in a better directed requirement and a more efficient response to ORE's needs for specific intelligence information.

2. Relations with Other IAC Agencies.

a. Dissents and Concurrences.

Only two dissents to ORE estimates were recorded during March. These were from the Department of State on ORE 9-48, Cuban Political Trends, and from the Navy on ORE 6-48, Consequences of Communist Accession to Power in Italy by Legal Means. The dissent by State appears to have been largely unnecessary. The Army still failed to meet deadlines in the coordination of papers, although there was some improvement in this regard.

b. Working-Level Liaison.

Normal working-level liaison was maintained during March with all the IAC agencies.

c. Evaluation of Industrial Card File.

On 4 March 1948 this office advised the IAC agencies that a sufficient amount of progress had been made by the Reference Center, CIA, in applying machine record techniques to the Industrial Card File so that the evaluation process could proceed at any time. Previous meetings with the IAC agencies resulted in the concurrence that the evaluation process should be conducted on an interdepartmental basis. Reports to this office indicated that the Intelligence Division, GSUSA, had arranged for the recall of 43 officers to active duty for a 90-day period to participate in this program. As a result of a meeting between representatives of CIA and the IAC agencies the following conclusions were reached:

SECRET

- a. That the task force including ID, A-2, ONI, and CIA representatives would limit initial effort to evaluation of eight major industrial categories.
- b. That consideration would be given to the Satellite areas of the USSR only in respect of plant dismantlings, and that the Industrial Card File program would not be broadened at this time to include further consideration of the Satellite areas.
- c. That the CIA Reference Center would furnish complete machine record support for the project.
- d. That new data derived as a result of the evaluation process would be incorporated into the Reference Center holdings by participating agencies.
- e. CIA support to the evaluation effort would be advisory and consultative.
- f. That some time after this effort has been under way representatives of the agencies concerned would convene to prepare a plan for continuance of the evaluation procedure on a long-range basis.
 - 3. Developments with Reference to the Board on Geographic Names.
- a. Based upon CIA approval of a plan to apply machine record techniques to the processed foreign geographic names of the Board on Geographic Names action has been taken by BGN to give the status of "Official Standard Names" to such gazetteers provided that in each instance the names have been processed in accordance with approved Board policies and principles. The results of this action will provide CIA and the IAC agencies with information not presently available as to the extent of previous Board action in the processing of foreign geographic names and will further result in greater efficiency and economies to all agencies in meeting the costs of new name research.
